Dealers and Merchants Must Obtain Licenses From Govt. Before Dec. 1st

Plan will Govern Prices of All Commodities and Provide Reports of Available Stocks in case of Wartime Shortage

C. R. Morphy, Director of Licensing under the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. All persons manufacturing, handling or selling foods, feeds, clothing or footwear, must secure a license before December 1st, 1941.'

OTTAWA, October 15th—Departmental and country general stores, large hotels and soda bars, manufacturers and auctioneers, every person and firm in Canada manufacturing or dealing in food, feeds, livestock poultry, yarn, cloth, clothing or footwear must secure a license from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board by December 1 of this year.

After that time, no unlicensed person or firm may buy for resale, handle, or sell any of those commodities.

More than 200,000 businesses are affected by this vast plan to set up the machinery necessary for policing prices and for securing speedy reports on available supplies in the event of wartime shortages. In the Wainwright area it is expected that some 250 persons and firms will soon be displaying on the door or window of their places of business the attractive gold and blue certificate which shows the public that they have obtained their wartime license.

There is no license fee. License application forms will be distributed through the mail this month and any businessman who is subject to the licensing order and does not receive an application form should apply for one at his post office. At the post office copies of the complete licensing order will also be available. To facilitate further the introduction of the licensing plan the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is appointing licensing directors, one for each province. Individuals or firms, who, after consulting the text of the licensing order, and still not certain on all points, should communicate directly with their Regional Licensing Director.

License application forms are easy to complete. At the top are spaces for filling in the name, address and official position of the applicant. Beneath these particulars is a list of classes of business and commodities named in the licensing order. All the applicant need do is place a check mark beside his type of business and the kind or kinds of commodities he buys for resale, handles or sells.

Applications of persons conducting more than one place of business must be accompanied by a list showing the address of each establishment. If these places of business carry different legal names, separate applications must be made out for each under its own name.

"License cards and window transfers will be supplied to all whose applications are received and accepted," said Mr. Morphy, "and the display of this transfer on the window of an establishment will not only serve as an indication that the firm is licensed but will also show the public that the licensee is co-operating with the being issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to all persons and firms included in the nation wide licensing plan. A combination of blue and gold, the licence certificate must be placed on the door or an adjoining window of the licencee's place of business. Deadline for securing allicence is December 1st, 1941.

Late J. E. Wilkins Laid to Rest

On Thursday of last week the funeral of the late Mr. J. E. ("Jerry") Wilkins, whose sudden death was noted in our last issue, was held at St. Thomas' (Ang.) church, when the solemn ritualistic of that faith was conducted by the vicar, Rev. L. Watts.

The church was crowded to the doors with sympathisers and friends, all of whom joined in the singing of favorite hymns of the family.

McLeod's parlors had charge of the arrangements, and the pall-bearers were Messrs. A. Lilly, Sr., H. Ward, Sr., W. Lyle, B. Hodgkiss, Jr., H. Smart and W. Carsell.

A profusion of floral tributes marked the esteem and respect of a large circle of sympathisers and friends, among these being:

The Family, The Rutherford Family, The Prosser Family, The Turner Family, Mr. and Mrs. H. Smart, The Patterson Family; Mr. and Mrs. J. Sutherland; Mr. and Mrs. Cardell and Family; Mr. and Mrs. Washburn; Mr. and Mrs. B. Hodgkiss and Family; Mr. and Mrs. Bowerman and Bessie; The Sosnick Family; Dr. and Mrs. Middlemass; Mr. and Mrs. A. CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our kind friends and neighbors for their acts of love and sympathy during our recent sudden loss of husband and father, and also extend grateful thanks for the beautiful floral tributes to our loved one.

MRS. J. E. WILKINS & FAMILY.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. C. Morrisette wishes to express to the many friends her heartfelt thanks for the tokens of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings extended at the passing away of the late Mr. C. Morrisette.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Roch Chartier, of Greenshields, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Girard Touchette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anatole Touchette, of Iberville, Que. The marriage will take place shortly.

MILITARY WHIST PROVES HAPPY GATHERING

Some thirteen tables were in play at the I.O.O.F. hall when a military whist party was staged by the W.I. for the Queen's air-raid fund last week.

The prize-winners were: Mrs. E. Jackson, Mrs. C. Graunke, Mrs. R. Leggett, Mrs. J. Donaldson, Mrs. W. Huntingford and Mrs. J. Robinson.

Refreshments were served at the close of play.

IN MEMORIAM

In cherished memory of a Dear Wife and Mother, who passed away on October 24th, 1940:

What would I give to clasp her hand,
Her happy face to see;
To her hear voice—to see her smile
That meant so much to me!

Ever remembered by her loving husband and family.

J. C. FORD, Fabyan.

Local Women's Institute Hold a Regular Meeting

Twenty members and four visitors gathered at the home of Mrs. A. Rattray for the recent meeting of the W.I. when an interesting and busy session prevailed.

Reports were presented regarding the collection of jam for overseas, the provision of comforts for the merchant marine, the supplying and filling of ditty bags, etc.

The whist drive held for the Queen's air-raid fund proved a big success, and thanks are extended to the donors of prizes for this affair.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Symes on November 13th.

Refreshments were served at the close of business.

V.V.R. to Stage Sham Manoeuvers

On Friday night last the V.V.R. unit met in the firehall for the first rifle practice of the season, and some exceptional score cards were turned in. The unit is entering a team of seven for the Provincial "small-bore" rifle competition which is to be run off during the winter months. Seven score targets are to be sent in every month, and at the end of the season, the team making the best average has a chance to compete for the Provincial championship in Edmonton, and possibly share in some of the grand prizes which are being donated by headquarters and various firms.

Thanks to the Town Fathers, the Wainwright unit will be able to do their shooting in the firehall basement again this winter. These warm quarters fitted with electric lights and other conveniences certainly will enhance this branch's chances of getting a real showing in the finals of the shoot-off; and it certainly behooves every member to get out and root or shoot.

On Sunday, two cars of the V.V.R.'s were down at the Battle River bridge busy staking out the grounds and practicing for the "Battle of the Century." This is the big motion picture project and rally that the unit in conjunction with the Edgerton and Hope Valley V.V.R. wish to form a season's climax. Dr. Greenberg of Irma has kindly consented to officiate both as director and camera-man.

Sunday, November 2nd, is the date set for the "over-the-top" stuff, provided the weather man stays good and beams that day. Visitors are cordially invited to come along. Bring your lunch and a tin mug, as the V.V.R.'s promise to provide fun aplenty in their spectacular try for entry into the land of Filmdom. They also promise to supply the coffee.

Members are asked to be on hand on Friday evening next at the firehall so that details can be completed for the work on Sunday, November 2nd.

Many here will regret to learn of the death of Mr. Harry Moss, an early settler here, who homesteaded the present Blesdale farm in 1907, the death took place at his home in Prince George, B.C. on October 1st.

Rosedale Branch of V.V.R.'s Set Dates

The first of each month at 2 p.m. are the dates which have been set for the meetings of the Rosedale V.V.R.'s, the gatherings being in the Rosedale hall. This was decided at a meeting held last Thursday, the officers in charge being Sergt. E. Lumby. Corpl. F. Redmond, with Chas. G. Moore acting as orderly room clerk.

Training rifles were issued and target practice arranged, and all residents of Rosedale, Sligo and Saddle Hill who wish to take up defence training are invited to the gatherings.

Farmers Mass Meeting Here Asks For One Dollar Wheat at the Lakehead

Local Board of Trade Lends Support to Project; Resolutions to go Before Government Cover Many Subjects.

At a mass meeting of farmers held in Wainwright on Monday, resolutions were proposed dealing with the present crop year, and asking the Federal Government to declare 1941-42 an Emergency Year under the P.F.A. legislation. The meeting also demanded that a minimum price of $1.00 per bushel be established at Fort William.

The meeting filled the I.O.O.F. hall to capacity and an interested gathering heard the various speakers of the afternoon. Mr. Ray Greer was elected Chairman. Messrs. W. J. Reynolds, D. Rattray and T. Sanders acted as resolutions committee. Mr. Kenn. Tory was appointed secretary.

Mrs. H. E. Spencer, as first speaker representing organized farm women, urged upon all the need for a farmers' organization to be supported in the endeavors to bring a just share of returns and privileges to the farming community. She pointed out that the benefits derived from the Crows-nest Pass agreement alone, an achievement of the U.F.A., had repayed many times over the annual fees paid into the association.

H. U. Taylor, representing the Wainwright and District Board of Trade, brought a message of encouragement from that body to the farmers, and speaking from his own knowledge and information showed that this district last year produced 46,000 acres of wheat, average yield 17 bushels, return to farmers $391,000.00 at the average figure of 50 cents local market.

Mr. Robert Fair, M.P., addressed the meeting and gave a brief survey showing that the present Marketing Board was set up in 1935, with an initial pegged price of 87½ cents, Fort William. He condemned the action of sacrificing the wheat on hand the first year, thus depressing the price.

Mr. Fair answered many questions and received hearty applause when he urged the farmers to support him in his efforts on their behalf.

Mr. Masson, M.L.A., addressed the meeting briefly.

Mr. Shaw, representing the A.T.A., spoke on the need for improvement in farm incomes, and the attention this problem was receiving from the teachers' organizations.

Mr. Grrer spoke on Livestock marketing and how the organiaztion had funds available to assist in financing new enterprises.

The followings resolutions were carried:

1. That wheat price be raised to $1.00 per bushel, F.O.B. Fort William.
2. That the present year be declared an Emergency Year under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act, and that payments under the act be changed to provide farmers with small Crops with an adequate standard of living.
3. That boards dealing with farm marketing be composed of farm representatives.
4. That meeting endorse 4-point policy of Prairie Wheat Pools.
5. That Provincial government take over oil resources to finance educational costs, and to adopt a greater proportion of the cost than the present 13 per cent, paid by the province.
6. Favor the establishment of cooperative farm implement marketing scheme in this part of province and pledged support in organizing.

Favored conscription of all wealth should precede or accompany conscription of man power — to bring about total war effort.

8. That mass meetings of farmers be called by municipalities of Gilt Edge, Vale, Battle River, etc., to further discuss ways of protesting present Farm policy of Federal government.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

NAMES WANTED

The Wainwright branch of the Canadian Legion are asking that the names, regimental numbers and units they are with, of all men who have gone from this district and are now serving overseas be handed in to any member of the branch, in order that no one may be missed when arranging for the forwarding of Christmas comforts for those so serving.

"CANADA AT WAR," Conclusion

(Article Number Five)

"THE NAVY"

By B. M. F.

As a fitting climax to the Canadian editors' tour, a day with the Royal Canadian Navy at Halifax had been arranged. To anyone who has visited Halifax in peace-time, the transformation to its predominant war-time role as a key port on the Atlantic coast comes almost as a shock. The streets of Halifax are thronged with officers and ratings of the R.C.N., the harbour is lined with ships being readied for convoy, new buildings to accomodate the Navy's needs are going up on all sides, and the dockyard is a veritable beehive of activity as thousands of navy men are schooled for service on the seas.

Arriving at Halifax early in the morning, the editors were shown through King's College, the Officers' training establishment, the Signalling School and the Admiralty House Grounds. Proceeding to His Majesty's Canadian Dockyard, our party saw all phases of the technical training of the Navy, including the gunnery school, ordinance artificer's shop, machine shops, anti-aircraft school and other departments of instruction. It is here that the officers and ratings receive their final training in gunnery, navigation, wireless telegraphy, signalling and able seamanship to fit them for their tasks. Stokers are taught their engine room duties and there are schools for cooks, stewards and sick-bay attendants. In one building the gunners were being trained on large naval guns. It was an unbelievable bedlam as the youngsters went through their paces, shouting and repeating orders and moving with speed and precision to their respective stations. Not all of these lads are Maritimers, in fact a great many are from the prairies and singularly enough they take to the water like ducks.

The Link Trainer, used in training centres of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan, gives the fledgling pilot the sensations and problems of actual flying, without leaving the ground. These devices are produced Rupert Davies, President of the Canadian Press, has it all explained to him by an officer at the R.C.A.F. station at Camp Borden.

Youth Predominates

Youth clearly has the call in the Canadian Navy. We met a 27-year-old officer who is commander of a destroyer and another of about the same age in charge of a brand new Canadian corvette. Another lad of twenty-one, an officer on a destroyer, had already come unscathed through the horrors of Dunkirk, where he was in command of a yacht which made four round trips in taking off British soldiers. We visited the stores where depth charges and big naval torpedoes are housed. We were introduced to Commodore Jones, Officer Commanding the Atlantic Coast, and his staff, and were told the story of how the convoys are assembled and shepherded across the Atlantic. It can be no secret that Halifax has a vital role in convoying merchant ships of Allied nations to beleaguered Britain and that the Royal Canadian Navy is playing a heroic part in this all-important task, having already safely escorted thousands of ships and millions of tons of cargo to their destinations in the Mother Country.

Aboard a Destroyer

We had a real opportunity to view the busy harbor when two of the now famous fifty American destroyers were placed at our disposal for a tour of the harbour and a 35-mile run onto the broad Atlantic. Fortunately for the editors it was a calm day. During the run depth charges were dropped and a smoke screen thrown out to add a realistic touch to the trip. The depth charges, rolled from the stern of the boat, threw a dense cloud of spray high into the air and jarred the destroyer with terrific force. It is easy to see how they can play havoc with submarines. The Captain of the destroyer on which we made the harbour trip was a sturdy 'sea-dog,' whose alert and ruddy countenance clearly reflected the spirit of the Navy. We learned that he had served aboard the H.M.C.S. Fraser, the Canadian destroyer which went down in a collision in the English channel with the loss of a number of lives. The Captain, his officers and ratings were most courteous to the editors and we derived a new insight into the valuable work performed by the heavily-armed destroyers both in convoy and patrol work. Overhead, passed flying boats which carry out a long-distance patrol far out to sea, while glimpses could be obtained of the heavy coastal fortifications of the harbor.

The Corvette

On the outgoing trip we passed several mine-sweepers and corvettes inward bound from patrol duty. Earlier at a Quebec dock-yard we had viewed similar ships in course of building. We saw some corvettes on the stocks with hundreds of men hammering and riveting, while another was ready for delivery. Contrary to popular conception, the corvette is not a small vessel, but rivals the destroyer in size and armament, although we understand that some corvettes of smaller size have been built at Ontario ports. Each of the larger corvettes is heavily armed. They are playing a significant role in the Battle of the Atlantic. One shipyard alone has 1,800 men at work on corvettes and mine-sweepers and the counterpart will be found in many a Canadian shipyard. The corvette is not as graceful a ship as the destroyer but it is sturdy and impressive in appearance. Expansion of the Royal Canadian Navy as a whole in the last two years forms one of the epics of this war, embracing an increase from 13 to 250 ships and in personnel from 1300 to 33,000 men and the number is increasing every day. The Navy's popularity with young Canadian manhood is proven by the steady stream of recruits pouring into Halifax and other naval training centres. Canada's Navy already has a proud record in this war. It will be enhanced as time marches on.

Women Lend a Hand

Just a word regarding the problem encountered by Halifax in meeting the needs of the thousands of naval ratings who are training for service there or who come ashore on leave. The women of Halifax, ably assisted in a financial way by various naval auxiliary services including the Navy League of Canada, are responding nobly to the call for canteens and wholesome recreation for the men. We visited three or four of such buildings and found that the sailors were making liberal use of the conveniences and comforts provided for them. One small canteen alone had served as many as 25,000 meals in a month. Most of the leaders in this work are wives of naval officers who employ all their spare time in the arduous duties of fitting out and supervising canteens and rest-rooms. Halifax churches likewise are doing their bit to brighten the off-duty hours of the lads who man Canada's ships. One of the most striking proofs of expansion is the erection of two new naval hospitals adjoining the Halifax waterfront, which are greatly needed to supplement existing accomodation.

A happy culmination of the editors' visit to Halifax was the banquet tendered at Admiralty House to our party by Commodore Jones and his staff of distinguished officers and ship captains. Our spokesman had a chance there to express appreciation of their gracious hospitality and to thank particularly Commander J. P. Connolly, M.C., V.D., Royal Naval Provost Marshal, who accompanied us on the tour. It was an occasion, too, to become acquainted with the sterling worth of Canada's men "who go down to the sea in ships."

Conclusion

In concluding this series of articles, we would like on behalf of the Canadian weekly newspapers to express to the Department of National Defence and to the officers of the General Staff, the R.C.A.F. and the Navy, as well as to the Directors of Public Information and Public Relations and their staffs, who took valuable

THE VALUE OF YOUR LOCAL NEWSPAPER IN LOCAL BUSINESS

The Wainwright Star plays an important part in local affairs. It employs wage-earners whose homes are in the town from which it secures business. These wage-earners pay taxes, support churches, make their contributions to local appeals, take part in community organizations, and spend most of their wages with local merchants. It is no idle boast that it has been the means of giving welldirected publicity to this town and district.

There is no business institution which gives so much free service as a local newspaper. Were a merchant asked to give the equivalent in goods that the newspaper gives in free service to all organizations, he would find it impossible to meet the demand.

When money is spent for printing or advertising with your local printing office, you are helping local printers to help you. You make it possible for them to serve you better. Out of Town printing salesmen take money out of the community—paying no taxes, buying nothing from local stores, getting all they can and not caring whether you sink or swim.

As merchants expect costumers to be loyal to their own community in buying goods from them, so might merchants remember they, too, should follow the same ideals in regard to their local printing office.

IT'S GOOD BUSINESS FOR ALL OF US

Customer goodwill in this town and district can best be developed by their regular advertising in your local community newspaper. The money spent for advertising, and printed matter, goes back to local merchants in increased trade.

Your dollars do double duty when spent with your local newspaper— they help you directly and others indirectly.

World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

The annual average exports of Canadian wheat overseas for the five years immediately prior to the outbreak of this war, was equivalent to 176 million bushels of wheat. During the two years of this war the exports have averaged 217 million bushels a year, and for the two months of August and September of this crop year, exports have been running at about the same high rate.

It will be observed from this, that while the war has cut off many markets for Canadian wheat, yet the amount of wheat which has left Canadian shores for export has actually increased substantially since the war started as compared with similar annual exports for the five years immediately prior to this war.

It is apparent, therefore, that it is not the war that is responsible for the present wheat surplus. The truth is that our wheat surplus was built up by the high tariff policies adopted during the past 20 years by the United States, Canada and other countries. These high tariffs made it impossible for foreign people to sell in Canada enough of their goods to bring them in sufficient Canadian dollars with which to purchase those quantities of Canadian wheat which they badly needed. Canada, apparently, forgot the ancient adage "If you don't buy you can't sell."

Following factors have tended to raise price: The Russian Ukraine and adjacent Crimea have been largely occupied by Nazi forces — The U.S. Government is considering legislation designed to increase Lease-Lend aid—The wheat and potato crops in Egypt are below normal — Heavy frosts in Argentina have destroyed about 15 per cent of the new wheat crop.

Following factors have tended to lower price: The possibility of selling U.S. Government owned wheat to check rising prices has unsettled markets—European weather continues favorable for fall plowing and most countries plan increased acreage — World production of wheat in 1941 is estimated at 5,172 million bushels, or slightly above 1940.

A workman in a Canadian plant puts the final stamp of approval on completed shells, lacking only a fuse to be ready for shipment to Great Britain. Each of these death-dealing missiles carries a message to Hitler from the Canadian people, who after two years of war are more determined than ever to eradicate the Hun hordes from the face of the earth.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

The condition of Canada's health is summarized in a pertinent article written for the Health League of Canada by Frank Chamberlain, publicist. "Canadians are a sick people," he writes, "and we are not alarmed about it. We go about our daily lives as if there were nothing wrong."

Yet, he charges, half a million Canadian children have been found to be improperly nourished. A quarter of a million of our Canadians suffer from impaired hearing. Seventy-seven thousand children have weak or damaged hearts. Thirty-five thousand are mentally retarded. Thirty thousand are suffering from tuberculosis. Thirty-eight hundred are partially blind. Over 1000 are wholly blind and 1400 are totally deaf.

Referring to a recent statement by Col. J. L. Ralston, Canada's minister of national defence, indicating that out of 50,000 young Canadians who had offered their services in Canada's armed forces, only 30,000 were found to be physically fit, the writer goes on to say "This is a tragedy, a sensational tragedy. I thought the newspapers of this country would blazen their eight-column headlines with this shocking fact."

Canada loses 311 children every year from diphtheria, despite the fact that toxoid will prevent diphtheria, the writer continues. Two hundred and seventy-one people die in Canada each year from typhoid fever, and between the years 1916-1937 there were 47 typhoid fever epidemics despite the fact that known methods of pasteurization of milk and safeguarding of water supplies will eliminate this disease.

The article points out that in a single year in Canada 16,675 infants under one died, 76 from every 1,000 live births. New Zealand loses 30 infants for every 1,000 live births. "Is there any reason why Canada should not be able to do as well as New Zealand?", Chamberlain asks.

"List the 26 leading countries of the world, and you'll find that there are only four with worse records of maternal death rates than Canada," he goes on. "What are we going to do about it? Why are the newspapers, the magazines, the radio, so silent?

"We mourn the loss of men killed in battle. Sixty thousand of them were killed in action or died of wounds in the four years of 1914-1918. We erect memorials, we write poems, we make speeches about their loss. And rightly so. But in another four years 70,000 children in Canada died under the age of one year. If we add to their ranks the stillborn and the mothers, we have a death toll in the fight for life of nearly 103,000 in the four-year period."

The backbone of preventive medicine is public health, the article concludes. "We must begin with the mothers—pre-natal care. Then the infants. Then the children. School health examinations must be stiffened. Rural health units must be strengthened. More health clinics must be opened. Full-time medical officers of health must be appointed. A full-out health educational program must be launched. Federal grants in aid of provinces must be renewed."

CANADA AT WAR

time from their official duties at Ottawa to accompany us on the entire trip, our sincere appreciation for a memorable journey. We would also give honorable mention to the Canadian National Railways. It is certain that the tour served the useful purpose of giving the editors a clear conception of what Canada is doing in this war and thus of enabling them to pass on information to their readers. If we have painted too rosy a picture of the Dominion's war program, it was not intentional. We simply recorded what we saw. There is ample time and place for criticism, such as the Federal Ministers have invited. No doubt the newspapers will do their duty in this regard, as they have in the past. These articles have merely aimed at portraying the extent of Canada's achievements in the army, the war industry, the R.C.A.F. and the navy. That defects, exist, there can be no doubt. The program is by no means perfect. It has grown so rapidly that no amount of supervision could coordinate and keep in hand the entire machine. We know that it has cost a colossal sum of money and that taxpayers are being asked to pay to the limit. But in developing the tools of war to defeat Hitler, monetary considerations must remain secondary.

We hold no brief for Canada's political government, but of one thing we can be sure, the leaders of Canada's military, air and naval forces, and the entrepreneurs of our war industries are the right men in the right place. They are keen, alert and on top of their jobs. If Canadian civilians will devote one fraction of the concentration and enthusiasm of these men to the war program, Canada's part in the Empire fight for survival will surely be a worthy one.

WAINWRIGHT, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 22nd, 1941

WAINWRIGHT'S CHALLENGE

Commencing with this week, Wainwright joins in the nation-wide effort to speed up the purchase of War Savings Stamps and Certificates. Our town and surrounding district is pledged to reach, and we hope surpass the goal of $2500 in every month "for the duration." Expressed in the terms of War Weapons, this is equivalent to three Bren guns per month.

During the early months of this year while the Spring drive to save for Canada was on, Wainwright worthily upheld its share of the provincial quota, but along in the summer months the total purchases both of stamps and certificates fell off somewhat, yet on the whole the pledged subscriptions held up quite well.

Now all that is required is that those who did not find it in their power last spring to invest, shall come along with enough subscriptions to entitle them to feel they are truly taking on their fair share of this nationwide effort.

Some ninety young men of our town and district, the lads we have seen grow to manhood in our schools have left us to join the ranks of those who fight to preserve our precious freedom, to stand between us and the tyranny of a people who have the insolence to set themselves above others as a so-called "super race." Surely, we at home will not be found wanting in the lesser task now set to our hands; to lend to our government a part of the wages and salaries we earn in quiet security, each day of our lives, in order that our gallant men may have in abundance the tools of war.

Let this be the watchword of the people of this district throughout the rest of the year—"it shall be done."

Don't leave it to the other chap. Do your full share, and do it now. If you are already pledged, keep right up to your promises, and increase it if you can.

If you are not pledged, begin right away and buy War Savings Stamps and Certificates regularly. Each certificate will cost you $4 now and be worth $5 to you at maturity.

We are asked to lend to Canada in order to arm our fighting men who are all that stand between us and the most highly organized gang of bandits the world has ever known. Let us be honest with ourselves. Either by birth or adoption, Canada is home to each one of us. We live, work, enjoy life here. Freedom is ours—the right to live, worship, each in his own accustomed way. Now that this way and this freedom is threatened, can we do less than our duty?

LET EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD INVEST EVERY DOLLAR THEY CAN AFFORD NOW.

V - - - - V

ARE WE DOING OUR PART?

Every loyal Canadian might ask himself seriously and conscientiously if he or she as the case might be, is doing all that can be reasonably expected to aid the war effort.

Every Canadian knows, or should know by now, that the enemies of freedom and democracy are heartless and merciless taskmasters. Human life means nothing to them at all. They have one desire to be masters of the world. The sacrifice of a few million more human souls is nothing to them if it will aid in their evil purpose. Reports now state that wounded soldiers, wounded beyond recovery are being killed instead of cared for and treated as long as life lasts in their bodies.

In view of these things, we should bestir ourselves. Being passively grateful for our safety and security is fine, but is insufficient. We should be actively grateful, and there are none who cannot show their gratitude in a tangible way. We have a way to be won on the financial front. Millions of Canadians have pledged War Savings Certificates regularly for this conflict. Are we all doing our share? If not, can we do better in the future? Our boys are guarding Britain's shores from the enemy. Are we going to let them down by failing to provide the means of war to keep them going.

Then there is another front, mainly production. Situated as we are, possibly our contribution in this latter field will have more far fetched effect than any other. Britain calls for more bacon, more butter, more cheese, more eggs, more everything. We, in western Canada, are in the cradle of production. What are we doing to assist in this phase of the conflict? Are we milking more cows, feeding more hogs, caring for more chickens? Or, if we have not increased in these fields, are we taking better care of what we have and trying to increase production to a maximum? If our English cousins want an extra egg for breakfast, let's see that they have it. British courage is and has been the wonder of all the world. Possibly full British stomachs has contributed more to this happy state than even the Britishers themselves realize. Let us in Canada see that cupboards are kept full so long as there is the wherewithal in Canada and in our soil to keep them full.

We are not fighting for or against communism or any other ism. We are fighting for freedom and we can never cease until freedom is won. Let us to the task in real earnest and do our full part as real Britishers to see that the flag of freedom shall always wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

The Editor,

Dear Sir:—An English friend of mine who is helping at a Red Cross Clothing Depot in North Wales has asked me if I would write to any newspapers in Canada, quoting these words which she has written:

"We would like the people of Canada to know how much we appreciate their kindness in sending so much clothing over here for the poor homeless people. I helped in a depot for Wales. We stand amazed when we see the charming frocks of all sizes, woolen jumpers, baby clothes, indeed everything that anyone can need. We are touched by the greetings which we find in many of the pockets of the little frocks. Our duty is to sort the clothing into bundles for six depots in Wales, so we do not see them distributed. I am quite sure that the poor people are delighted with the clothing, also with the notes put inside. If they are not answered it is because many of them might be incapable of doing so, and some might not have writing materials. I hope, however, you may hear from some of them in due course. We can never repay such large-hearted generosity. Please accept our most grateful thanks."

Yours truly,
RHYDDID G. WILLIAMS.

The Editor,

Dear Sir:—Could you find space in your paper for the following suggestion. I would like to see all the school children for this year at least, give up their door-to-door canvass for treats on Hallowe'en, and instead each housewife could give their own child 50 cents, which could in turn be given to some worthy fund.

Where no children are going to school, as in my own case, money could be given to some other child. Perhaps the teacher of each class would co-operate and collect same from the scholars. This money could then all be given to a fund, say the Queen's fund for bombed out children in Britain.

I feel sure every child would be proud to think that by thus giving up their treats they would be helping a worthy cause.

Let Wainwright follow the example of many other schools and I am sure we shall all be proud of our loyalty.

MRS. A. E. TAYLOR.

WORLD'S WEEK

BY HAROLD L. WEIR

Associate Editor of the "Edmonton Bulletin" and author of the daily column "From the News."

The whole picture of Europe and the war is colored by the present battle for Moscow. On its outcome may depend the course of events in Italy and even in the Pacific.

The peoples of the occupied countries of Europe were told that Hitler staked his own reputation on the success of his carefully planned and prepared drive against Moscow. Should, contrary to present indications, that plan fail, the effect on Italy, Japan and European peoples may well be decisive.

Harold L. Weir

If Moscow falls and the Soviet Union continues the fight, it will be longer before ideas in the back of a good many minds can be achieved.

Latest reports from Italy confirm those which have been reaching here for some time. Morale there is extremely bad and each new food and clothing restriction only lowers it.

The Germans, aware that the Italian people are thoroughly tired of the war which has lasted at least a year longer than they had anticipated, have seen to it that the Italian army is well dispersed outside Italy. Many units are in Yugoslavia and Greece, and others in Africa.

Those units of the Italian army which are fighting on the Russian front are reported to have suffered heavy losses in a most unfriendly climate. The Italian people have not even had the satisfaction of hearing them praised in German communiques which scarcely mention the Italian army.

Il Duce's position is the weakest it has ever been and that of the Royal family is little better. A military defeat in Moscow front might well bring Italian discontent to a head and seriously threaten the regime.

It must be repeated that any plans for enticing Italy out of the war seem to be based on a realistic consideration: Africa must be cleaned up first. Whether the British army has acquired enough tanks in Egypt to make up for its losses last spring is a matter only the general staff could divulge, if it would.

Should Hitler's Moscow manoeuvre fail, the possibility of the Italians laying down their arms is believed good. Then their exit from the war would require a British guarantee of Italy's northern frontier. There is no reason to believe that the British would refuse that.

Some reports mention large German forces in Italy. The latest and most reliable reports, however, indicate that the Germans in Italy are principally Gestapo men unsupported by armed forces. If an Italian defection occurred, the Germans would have to invade Italy either by air or by way of the Brenner, which is still believed to be defensible.

In England the radio war has entered an intense period with "Frightful Fritz", entering into the arena where "Ivan the Terrible" has reigned supreme for the past three months. Fritz has made his first appearance butting into the British Broadcasting Corporation's programs.

Interruption by the quick-witted speaker of another country's home broadcasts originated with the Russians. Their speaker, who constantly interrupted the Deutschland sender's programs, came to be known as Ivan the Terrible. He always had an answer ready and never failed to jump in between sentences with pungent and very pertinent remarks.

After many weeks of this irritating form of warfare the Germans have apparently decided to try it on Great Britain. Fritz's voice was first heard on the Home Service program, interrupting "Women At War."

The interview of the W.A.A.F. (Women's Auxiliary Air Force) was proceeding but on several occasions, before a women could answer a question asked, Fritz jumped in. Listeners were disappointed in the quality of his answers. When the W.A.A.F. was asked "how do you like the services?" Fritz yelled "nasty, rotten, horrible. You wait till you get some of those German eggs on you."

The quick-wittedness of Ivan was not evident and though Fritz spoke good English his appreciation of English mentality did not seem great. He used, "we" when referring to the British and "Germans" as though he were speaking from Britain.

The voice of Fritz was most clearly heard in southeast England which gave rise to the belief that the Germans were using radio Normandie or radio Calais. It was faint in the north. By 9 o'clock when the most popular program of the day went on, the voice had been faded pretty well into the background by the more powerful B.B.C. transmitter.

For other programs, Donald Duck was introduced to drown out Fritz.

Since the outset of the war each country has developed new methods of drowning out foreign broadcasts and it is possible to hear the Germans jamming French broadcasts from London. Powerful stations have been able completely to silence smaller ones.

The radio war may develop to a point where there is a race to build always more powerful transmitters in order to interfere with the enemy's broadcasts and to guarantee against interruptions at home.

The British feel that their policy of having announcers give their names has been a good one, for last night listeners were able to distinguish between the inimitable voice of Alvar Liddel, popular news announcer, and the equally English voice of "Frightful Fritz."

The Star invites its readers to listen to The Saturday Night Review which is broadcast every Saturday night at 8:15 over CFRN (1260 kc.)

CONTINUATION OF

Dealer Licenes

government in its effort to avoid unnecessary increases in the cost of living.

The first license identification card will be light blue in color and will expire on March 31st, 1942. It will carry the license number allotted to the applicant in the upper right hand corner. At the left is a space for the signature of the holder. This license identification card will be mailed to each licensee along with his window certificates.

Each licensee will receive a number which he will retain from year to year provided the name of his firm is not changed or his license cancelled by the Board. After December 1, when any of the commodities named in this Licensing Order are bought for resale, both the seller's and buyer's license number must be marked on the sales slip, invoice, or other documents which records the sale.

Licenses and window tranafers will be renewed every six months. It will not, however, be necessary for the license-holder to apply for a new license because he will automatically receive one by mail at the end of every six-month period. These periods expire on the last day of March and September.

Under the Board's Licensing Order the following classes of persons, firms and corporations are required to secure a license by December 1, 1941.

"Every manufacturer, processor, blender, packer, importer, exporter, wholesaler, jobber, retailer, manufacturer's agent, broker, commission merchant, auctioneer, warehouse operator, cold storage plant operator, co-operative buying organization, co-operative marketing or selling organization, producer who buys and sells the products of others, drover, huckster, or other person who buys the products of agriculture for resale, custom tailor, shoe repair operator, public eating place operator, or other dealer, who buys, sells, stores, ships, transports, distributes, or otherwise deals in food products, aerated or mineral waters, mill feeds, feeds for livestock or poultry, clothing, headwear, yarn or cloth of cotton, linen, wool, silk, artificial silk or rayon, wool or cotton blankets, fur goods, hosiery, footwear, or boot and shoe findings."

License holders will be required to make reports if and when required by the Board. They must also notify the Director of Licensing in writing of any change in name, address, ownership or character of the business within 10 days of the change. Failure to do this or failure to perform such other acts as may be required by the Board, will result in the suspension of the license.

The term "public eating place operator" applies not only to restaurant keepers, but also to railways, steamships, dine stores and hotel proprietors if food is served in their places of business. Any person or firm who sells food, even if it is only chocolate bars is subject to license. If, for example, a department or novelty store operates a cafeteria, lunch counter, soda bar or dining room, the store should be listed on its license application as operating a public eating place in addition to its classification as a retail merchant. Public eating places, on the other hand, which sell some fruits, vegetables, or groceries, will not be required to list themselves as retail merchants. But in the license application form, they must put a check mark opposite the various supplementary lines which they handle.

Only group exempt from the far-reaching plan are those who serve as the fountain-head for the nation's eating and clothing needs — the producers themselves. A farmer may sell his own eggs or butter or vegetables without a license and a sheep rancher may sell his wool.

While an individual farmer, gardener, livestock or poultry producer, or fisherman is not required to secure a license unless he buys for resale, all co-operative buying, selling, or marketing organizations and hucksters, or drovers, who, on their own account, buy for resale or handle the produce of any primary producer, must obtain a Wartime Prices and Trade Board License.

An example of how thoroughly the licensing regulations cover the handling and sale of foodstuffs and clothing is shown in the provisions covering warehouses and cold storage plants. After December 1, persons who are subject to the Licensing order may not store any article of food, feed, clothing or footwear until they have secured a license, and no warehouse or storage plant operator will be permitted to accept such commodities unless the number of the store's license is marked on the document recording acceptance. None of these commodities can be withdrawn from cold storage or a warehouse for resale unless the person making the withdrawal is licensed by the Board and unless the document recording the release carries his license number. All warehouse and cold storage plant operators must, of course, themselves be licensed.

"These licensing requirements aren't designed to curtail business operations", pointed out C. R. Morphy, Director of Licensing. "By having every person who in any way handles the commodities named in the Order under the license, the Board will have the machinery with which to make speedy checks on available stocks and to police more effectively any price fixing order which may be instituted."

Individual persons storing small quantities of the commodities named in the licensing order strictly for their own use, are not required to obtain a license. If these stored goods are, however, being kept for resale, their owner must secure a license.

Before his appointment to the office of Director of Licensing, C. R. Morphy was in charge of the plan which has already brought Canadian dealers in coal and hides and leather under license to the Wartimes Prices and Trade Board. He served in the last war as Lieutenant with the Canadian Field Artillery and was later associated with the licensing division of the Canadian Food Board.

AMONG THE OLD TIMERS

REMINDERS OF OTHER DAYS

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. F. Dixon and family were over from Hughenden on the week end for a visit to Mr. A. Alexander.

Filming of the "Last Frontier," where many buffalo scenes were taken in the Wainwright Buffalo Park, has just been completed and it is hoped will be shown here soon.

Mr. A. Gullikson, of Excell, has purchased a farm north of town and left on Monday to bring his effects here. Welcome.

Messrs. McKay and McQuaker are busy on the erection of several new buildings in the Buffalo Park which will be used in connection with the shipping of animals this winter.

The council granted the use of land to the Hospital Board for the erection of the new hospital.

Mr. Ben Karmon returned this week with his bride, the former Miss Anne Duckworth. The wedding took place in Parkersburg, W. Virginia, with Rev. J. W. Knight officiating.

Mr. Carl Forrester had the misfortune to lose one of his fingers in an oil well rigging this week. There was another finger crushed but it is hoped that this can be saved.

The big ditcher that is digging the gas main ditches fell into an old village fire tank. Mr. Deval had the old tank filled up with rocks, and before long had the ditcher out on the job again.

Mr. W. Bibby has the contract to haul the meat from the park this winter.

In 1926, car licenses issued totalled all of 63,000. (In 1941 there were well over 100,000.)

GILT EDGE

The Council of the Municipal District of Gilt Edge No. 422 met in regular session, October 14th, when there were present, Councillors Withnell, Knott, Taylor, Arthur and Sutherland.

In the absence of Reeve Mills, Deputy Reeve Sutherland called the meeting to order and asked the Secretary to read the minutes of the last regular meeting.

Moved by Coun. Sutherland—that the minutes of the meeting of September 9th, be adopted as read. — Carried.

Mr. G. Graham representing the Wainwright branch of the Canadian Legion waited on Council, regarding the Legion sending parcels overseas for Christmas, he requested that this Council co-operate with the Legion in an endeavor to obtain the names of all those from the district who are serving with the Active Service Forces Overseas. The Council agreed to co-operate in this respect and at the suggestion of a grant this matter was tabled till our next meeting.

Moved by Coun. Withnell — that Coun. Knott be appointed a committee of one to interview Real La-France in regard to his agreement to deliver wheat under the increased quota.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Arthur—that By-Law No. 76 authorizing the sale of the E½ of the NW¼ of Sec 32-44-6 to H. Bevans be given third reading and finally passed, and that the Reeve and Secretary are hereby authorized to sign, seal and deliver all papers in connection with this transaction.—Carried.

PASSCHENDALE

The Sew and So Club spent a pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Thompson last Thursday. Plans were made for sending Christmas boxes to soldiers of our district serving overseas and in Canada. The contest given by Mrs. Seth Oldham was won by Mrs. Steve Thomson. At the close of the afternoon a chicken supper was served by the hostess.

The Passchendale school was stuccoed this summer and now the roof has been painted so it really looks like a new building.

A farewell party was given on Monday last in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. Mallard who are leaving shortly for B.C. We wish them the best of luck in their new home.

Mr. Johnnie Houski has returned to Calgary after spending a few days with Mr. L. Egrie.

The Women's Welfare Club held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Flaxton when it was arranged to send Christmas parcels to the boys in khaki.

A quiet wedding took place on Saturday at St. Thomas' church when Mary Elizabeth Roberts became the bride of William Earl Flaxton.

Some of the young people were invited to a chicken supper on Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Des. Cooper. They had a lovely supper and a wonderful time.

Private C. McLean is home on leave with his wife and family.

HEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Messier and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Smith motored to Vermilion on Sunday to visit relatives.

Miss Edith Turnbull has returned to Vermilion after spending a week with her parents here.

There was a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Fred Ford on Saturday afternoon in honor of of Mrs. Stanley Murray, a recent bride.

Geo. Davis came from Edmonton on Saturday's train and plans to leave again this week with his family to reside in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wanup have been staying with Mrs. Wanup's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Turnbull and have returned to their home in the Stettler district.

EDGERTON

The only excitement in the Village last week was a farewell party for Worthy Darling who, as previously stated, was home on his embarkation leave. The affair was held at the home of Major and Mrs. W. C. Nelson on Tuesday evening, October 14th. Approximately 35 young people were present, so, the kind-hearted host rolled back the rugs, and the jolly crowd danced away the hours until almost mid-night. A bountiful lunch was served them, after which the entire party escorted Worthy to the station where he was given a rousing send-off.

Messrs. H. E. Spencer, P. S. Pawsey and E. M. Gorton paid a hurried trip to Edmonton on Wednesday last where their interviewed the "powers that be" about the ever present highway problem. To date we have been unable to ascertain what results—if any—were obtained.

Mr. and Mrs. Russ Kyle have moved from the rooms above the Post Office and are now settled in the house recently vacated by the Clair Johnston family.

Last week's accident victims, Anne Gilmour and Jack Watson, are both making good progress. We noticed Jack hobbling along in fine style, so he will soon be quite recovered. Anne of course will be handicapped for a good many weeks yet.

Mrs. Geoff. Miles and Mrs. Alec Calvert were business visitors to Wainwright last Saturday afternoon.

The glorious weather of the last few days is really something to talk about, but somehow or other we feel that it is better not to say anything —just in case—so we will ignore the whole thing and go on enjoying it.

The Misses Dorothy Spornits and Marjorie Mitchell cycled to Wainwright last Sunday and we understand that school-desks were quite uncomfortable on Monday, so much so, that they wished lessons could be taken while standing.

GREENSHIELDS

The shower dance in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Carl was much enjoyed by all. The gifts were beautiful and useful.

In the interests of the War Service League, a meeting will be held in the hall on Wednesday evening, October 22nd. Everyone welcome; and YOUR HELP is needed!

Miss Gladys Haynes of Saskatoon was a welcome visitor at her parents' home over the week end.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. A. Bakland on the birth of a daughter.

Mr. A. Patterson and family, of Heath, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Patterson.

The fine weather has enabled the farmers to complete threshing operations.

BANK OF MONTREAL'S FINAL CROP REPORT

The final telegraphic crop report of the Bank of Montreal for the season says: Once more the staple field crops have been harvested throughout the Dominion, and in general the yields have been more or less below average, the greatest falling off, when compared with the bounteous crops of 1940, being in Western Canada's wheat yield, which, at an estimated total of 286,000,000 bushels, is only about 54 per cent of that of last year. This wheat has a high protein content, although grades will be only fair to poor.

The average per acre yields by provinces are estimated to be: Alberta 14.1 bushels, Saskatchewan 11.1 bushels and Manitoba 30.7 bushels. The acreage sown to wheat on the prairies showed a decrease of 6,199,000 acres, or approximately 23 per cent.

Threshing operations have been delayed by continual rains and although nearing completion in Saskatchewan are not more than 75 per cent completed in Manitoba and 65 per cent in Alberta. The lateness of harvesting operations and the restrictions on marketing have combined to retard deliveries by farmers, which from August 1 to October 10 amounted to 63,900,000 bushels as compared with 173,900,000 bushels last year.

HOW DOES YOUR LABEL READ?

A Short Short Story —

Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep

BY LESLIE HAMILTON

"Pst! What was that flash of light in the churchyard?" Tim Brown demanded in a subdued whisper, pausing in his walk home from the weekly lodge meeting with a fellow member.

"I think you're seeing things," laughed his companion, a neighbor of Brown's by the name of Bill Green. "That last beer you had before leaving the club must have scored 'one over the eight,' as far as your capacity is concerned."

"Tch, tch! There it is again!" Brown gave the lie to the unfounded aspersion upon his friend's sobriety, grasping his friend's arm and gazing in rapt attention into the inky blackness of the cemetery grounds behind the church house.

"By golly, I believe you're right!" Green muttered, emulating Brown's example and peering through the shadows at a furtive flicker of repeated light.

"Whoever is snooping around in there is up to no good, I'll bet," the first speaker decided, "otherwise they wouldn't be so all-fired cautious about what they're doing."

"It certainly looks suspicious," the other agreed. "Do you think we ought to investigate, or presume it's none of our business?" hesitatingly vouchsafed, after waiting for a few moments to see if the light would show again.

"If it wasn't such a beastly night!" his friend replied, bending forward to allow a little stream of rain to pour from the brim of his hat. "I'd say we ought to see what it's all about."

"Listen!" Green muttered with renewed interest, "I heard the click of a spade striking a stone. Sounds like there's digging going on."

"I heard it, too," Tim whispered, after a brief pause in which the two men stood in an attitude of alert attention.

"There's the light again," Green pointed to a series of short, quick flashes, winking like a beckoning beacon in the stygian gloom of the deserted churchyard.

"I think it's underneath that tall pine tree over there," Brown signalled out a landmark, "and I think we'd better look into it. Come on!"

"Okay," his pal yielded. "Lead on. I guess we might as well."

Carefully picking their way between the puddles on the road, the two stalwart citizens of Alysbury edged along the wall of the churchyard grounds toward a driveway leading into the cemetery proper. Keeping their eyes focussed on the tall tree as a guide, they crept stealthily over the short grass bordering the drive, until a murmur of low voices, a short distance ahead, warned them they were closing in on the scene of surreptious and nocturnal operations.

"Can you see or hear anything?" Bill demanded, striving to pierce the shadows where faint whispers indicated their quarry seemed to be gathered.

"There's three or four, maybe more, people," Tim informed him, "and they have a lantern which one of them is sheltering beneath his coat."

"There's the spade again!" Bill breathed in suppressed excitement, "and there's four of them at it. And, by golly, the one holding the lantern is a woman!"

"Are you sure?"

"Sure I'm sure!" Tim reproved the note of doubt in the other's voice. "And they're digging up a corpse as sure as you're born," dragging his friend toward a large tombstone, from the closer cover of which they had a clearer view of the proceedings.

"I'll bet you all the tea in China it's illegal," Green observed, thrilling with excited anticipation at what their discovery might portend.

"I'm certain of it!" Brown agreed in a sibilant undertone. "If everything was above-board they wouldn't be opening a grave with all this secrecy; like a lot of burglars cracking a safe. They'd have plenty of light on the subject."

"Do you know what I think?" Green solemnly queried, after watching the diggers lower ropes into the pit, preparatory to hauling its casket to the surface for inspection.

"What?"

"They're body-snatchers!"

"Do you think so?"

"Absolutely! Haven't you read about that gang who dug up bodies in cemeteries and then sold them to a medical college for experiments?"

"Yeh. But the police rounded them up months ago!"

"I'll bet this lot are some of the gang that the cops didn't get," retorted Green, all agog with visions of his picture in the paper as one of the heroic citizens who apprehended the dastardly thugs in the very act of looting the local burying grounds.

"What'll we do now?" Brown gasped, as another flash of the lantern revealed the casket hoisted from its resting place in mother earth.

"You stay here and watch 'em," Green commanded, "while I run down to the police station and get Sergeant Tubbleworth."

"Okay, but don't be long. As soon as they get the coffin they'll be doing the vanishing act."

"If they skedaddle before I get back with the sergeant, you follow them and see where they go to," the other admonished in parting warning, melting into the shadows on his dash for official reinforcements.

"If I didn't know you for a respectable citizen, Mr. Green," Sergeant Tubbleworth commented, after listening to Green's story of what was going on in the cemetery. "I'd say you were both drunk, but as you're evidently cold sober, and as I don't think either you or Brown would pick a night like this for a practical joke, let's go and see what they're up to."

"Don't you think we'd better take a constable or two with us, just in case of trouble?" the sergeant's informer timidly asked.

"I have my revolver," came the sharp retort, "and with yourself and Mr. Brown to lend a hand, I think we shall be able to handle the situation all right. Only four of 'em, you say, and one of them a woman?"

"That's all, sergeant. But the woman may be the most dangerous of the lot. Remember what the French say: 'Sa-chay the femme,' or something like that when there's a woman in a crime."

"That's 'cherchez la femme'," laughed the police officer, "and means 'find the woman.' What you meant to imply was that the 'female of the species is more deadly than the male,' isn't that it?"

"I guess that's what I did mean," Green smiled ruefully, clambering into the sergeant's car for the run to the cemetery.

"Lucky it's downhill to the graveyard," the policeman commented, switching off his ignition and coasting the last few hundred yards with his lights out, in order to reach his destination without alarming the culprits.

"Look, sergeant!" Green whispered as they crept along toward the place where Brown was on the watch. "There's the light of the lantern, so they're still here."

"Well . . . I'll be jiggered!" the policeman ejaculated in horrified astonishment, suppressing a sudden desire to whistle as he surveyed the scene before him with outraged indignation.

Since Green had gone for the arm of the law, the marauders had pried off the coffin lid and, carefully removing the body it contained, were now busily engaged in wrapping the corpse in a blanket, preparatory to carrying it away . . .

"Are you all ready, Mary?" one of the body-snatchers, who seemed to be the leading spirit in the midnight abduction of the deceased, turned to the woman with the lantern.

"As soon as the casket has been put back and the grave filled in again," she answered in muffled tones, "then we'll be ready to go ahead."

With every move of the spoilers under breathless observation by the watchers, the robbers carefully lowered the empty casket into the pit, filled in the grave again and then finished up their handiwork by neatly arranging recent floral tributes in position by the headstone, after which they gathered up their burden and started for the opposite side of the cemetery grounds, the woman leading the way by flashes of the hidden lantern, while the watchers, who had decided to see where the body was going, stalked the thieves in grim and stony silence.

"What if they have a car?" Brown whispered to the sergeant, as the party turned toward the sea shore after leaving the churchyard premises.

"It's a boat they're going to take, not a car," Green muttered when the party made for the beach and a rowboat drawn up on the sands.

"Sure enough, they've laid their victim in the boat's bottom," Brown swore savagely, while the police sergeant loosened the flap of his revolver holster, ready for instant action.

"Hands up, everybody!" the sergeant commanded, just as the body snatchers were preparing to push off with their loot.

It's the police!" one of the gang exclaimed, looking up in sudden alarm as the policeman and his aides, by a rapid dash across the sands, succeeded in covering them before they had time to launch the boat.

"What's the meaning of this?" demanded the arm of the law, pointing to the blanket-wrapped body in the bottom of the rowboat. "How dare you steal a corpse from a grave! What did you expect to do with it, might I ask; sell it for medical research?"

"Oh no!" gasped the woman. "Nothing like that at all. We are merely re-burying my brother where he always made me promise I would put him when he died, but the rest of the family wouldn't hear of it, so I've taken it upon myself to carry out my brother's last request."

"What do you mean, re-burying him?" the sergeant coughed, a little nonplussed by the ready explanation of what he had firmly believed to be a crime, adding with a startled exclamation when he saw the woman's face: "Why, it's Mary White, of all people!"

"Harry was always very fond of the sea," Miss White continued in simple explanation, "and always declared that he wished to be buried in the sea if he died before I did; so, when the family refused to consider it when I told them, I just got some friends to help me do it secretly."

As the bareheaded trio on the shore watched the boat pull out into the Atlantic a short time later, the sergeant, who was a bit of a poet in his own quiet way, gently murmured: "'Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep' is a fitting epitaph for Harold White who loved the sea with all the passion of a bridegroom for his newly-wedded wife!"

Members of the United States and British delegations to the Moscow conference are shown arriving at the Soviet capital. They met Premier Stalin and immediately after, with Molotov presiding, started the conference that will decide ways and means of pooling U.S.-British-Russian resources to beat Germany. In the first row, left to right, are: A. Y. Vyshinsky, deputy people's commissar for foreignaffairs; Lord Beaverbrook, British minister of supply, who is head of the British delegation; W. Averell Harriman, U.S. minister to Britain, and head of the U.S. delegation, and Constantin Oumansky, Soviet ambassador to the United States. All these are in the front row. In the second row we have Sir Stafford Cripps on the left of Lord Beaverbrook, and Laurence Steinhardt, U.S. ambassador to Moscow, of the right of Lord Beaverbrook. The others are leaders in naval, military and official Soviet affairs.

HUNTERS SPEND BIG SUMS IN ALBERTA

If they are given the opportunity, tourists will spend more money in Alberta and visit here in still greater numbers.

Recently there were reports of big game hunters arriving in Alberta by aeroplane from the United States, then leaving for the hunting areas by motor car, pack train and other modes of conveyance along the way.

These hunters spend thousands of dollars in Alberta each season. Some time ago one large party estimated that its outlay would average $50 a day for the expedition.

With Alberta roads in better condition and hard surfaced, so that hunters would be enabled to penetrate to various hunting regions to a greater degree, doubtless a still larger number of nimrods would be attracted to Alberta.

Officials of the Canadian Travel Bureau have emphasized the importance of stressing the game attractions of the Canadian west, particularly hunting and fishing, which are permanent lures to tourists.

When these hunters are eager to come to Alberta, which is known to have some of the finest big game country, every effort must be made to facilitate their entry by motor car or other means. Their expenditures mean a big item each season to business in the province, it is pointed out by officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

Throughout Canada, from dawn to dusk, keen-eyed young men from Canada and other Empire countries learn to become gunners in R.C.A.F. schools of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Nothing is left to hazard in the training of a gunner for upon his sharp eyes and quick trigger finger depends to a large extent the efficiency of our Air Force. In this photo a young gunner of the R.C.A.F. with his Vickers gun stands by the tail of a Fairey Battle ready for action.

2 cups cooked, dried Limas
1 cup diced celery
½ green pepper, minced
½ cup French dressing.

Mix ingredients an hour or more before serving. To serve, arrange on lettuce leaves. Place a spoonful of mayonnaise on top and sprinkle mayonnaise with minced green pepper.

California Coleslaw

2 cups orange sections
Sour cream dressing
2 cups shredded cabbage

Shred crisp, fresh cabbage quite fine. Mix with the orange sections and enough sour cream dressing to moisten. Garnish with whole orange slices. Serves 6.

Magic Fruited Macaroons

2/3 cup (7½ oz. can) sweetened condensed milk
2 cups shredded coconut
1 cup dates, uncooked prunes or apricots

Mix sweetened condensed milk and coconut. Add either dates, prunes or apricots, which have been finely chopped. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet, about 1 inch apart. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 minutes or until a delicate brown. Remove from pan at once. Makes about 30. Sweetened condensed milk works like magic in making crunchy cookies that are failure-proof.

Angel Rennet-Custard

1 package vanilla or orange rennet powder
1 pint milk
1 cup broken angel cake
½ cup finely cut blanched almonds
½ cup finely cut candied fruits
¼ cup whipping cream

Divide the angel cake, almonds and candied fruit among 6 dessert glasses. Make rennet custards according to directions on package, pouring it over the cake-fruit-nut mixture in each glass. Do not move until firm—about 10 minutes. Chill. When ready to serve top with whipped cream.

Chocolate Jack-o'-lantern Tarts

2 to 3 squares unsweetened chocolate
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup water
6 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 teaspoons butter
1½ teaspoons vanilla
6 baked tart shells
6 baked jack-o'-lantern faces, cut out of pastry.

Combine chocolate, ½ cup sugar, and water in saucepan. Cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Combine flour, remaining sugar, and salt in top of double boiler. Add milk gradually; stirring well; then add chocolate syrup. Place over boiling water and cook until thickened, stirring occasionally. Pour small amount of mixture over egg, stirring vigorously; return to double boiler and blend. Remove from boiling water, add butter and vanilla. Cool. Turn into tart shells. Arrange jack-o'-lantern faces on top of filling.

Witches' Brew

When witches prowl and black cats howl on Hallowe'en, you'll be on the safe side if you serve this decaffeinated coffee beverage, so that you and your guests won't have to worry about sleeping problems.

1 cup strong decaffeinated coffee
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
3 tablespoons sugar
Dash of salt
3 cups milk

Make decaffeinated coffee extra strength using 1½ tablespoons for each cup (½ pint) water. Add chocolate to coffee in top of double boiler and place over low flame, stirring until chocolate is melted and blended. Add sugar and salt, and boil 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Place over boiling water. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly; then heat. When hot, beat with rotary egg beater until frothy. Serve hot or cold. Top with whipped cream, if desired. Use cinnamon stick for stirrers. Serves 4. Remember, when making decaffeinated coffee by pot or percolator, that it needs slightly longer brewing to bring out its full flavor.

BOOKS FOR FORCES IN CANADA AND NEWF'DLAND

Special arrangements have been made by the Canadian Post Office Department to facilitate the sending of books to Canadian Forces in camps in Canada and Newfoundland. The value attached by soldiers, sailors and airmen to a plentiful supply of books in their reading rooms, etc., have been stressed both by the men themselves and by those who have visited their camps. Good, interesting books are always in demand and it is highly important that the supply should be frequently replenished.

Honorable William P. Mulock, K.C., M.P., Postmaster General, announces that in the interest of our soldiers, sailors and airmen stationed in Canada and Newfoundland, and as a special measure of co-operation, all Post Offices throughout the country will act as depositing centres for Books. This applies to Books only—not to magazines, newspapers, etc.

Persons who wish to supply our Forces with much appreciated reading matter may now hand in these volumes at their Post Office — the books donated should be clean and in good condition. It will not even be necessary to wrap them as they will be placed in mail bags especially provided for the purpose.

Citizens can ensure that men in camps in Canada and in Newfoundland will receive the full benefit of this privilege by going to their bookshelves and picking out books and handing them in at the Post Office, which will arrange for delivery to the various Training Camps—where they will be welcomed with interest and will relieve the monotony of the boys in Canada's Forces, especially during the Fall and Winter seasons.

PLAN AIRGRAPH SYSTEM FOR OVERSEAS FORCES MAIL

With a view to speeding up the delivery of letters from relatives and friends in Canada to the Canadian Forces in the United Kingdom, Honourable William P. Mulock, K.C., M.P., Postmaster General, stated that arrangements are now under way for the institution of a time-and-space-conserving Airgraph Service between this country and the United Kingdom.

In keeping with this policy to do everything possible to facilitate the transmission of mails for our forces, with the minimum of loss and delay, Hon. Mr. Mulock is planning to institute this special system at an early date. Following completion of arrangements now under way, a definite announcement will be made by Hon. Mr. Mulock as to the date of commencement.

Under this special system the sender of an Airgraph communication writes the message and address on a special form provided by the Post Office. The completed form is next photgraphed on miniature film which is despatched by Air. On arrival in the United Kingdom photographic enlargements are made and delivered through the Army Postal Service to the troops in the usual way. The rate on an Airgraph message will be 10 cents.

ADVERTISING...

(A MESSAGE TO LOCAL MERCHANTS)

It is difficult for us to conceive of any single force which wields so great an influence in our life as advertising . . . yet, how many people stop to consider what advertising really is.

Advertising is any means or method of communication of essential information as to where, when and how a commodity or service may be obtained . . . and WHY IT IS DESIRABLE.

Before people will buy, they must be 'sold.' They must make up their mind that they want the goods or service more than any other product their money will buy . . . more than they want to keep the money.

But how can a person find this magic formula of convincing prospects "WHY IT IS DESIRABLE"?

The answer lies in the product or service itself . . .
Why do people buy your product now?
How do they use it?
What does it do for them?
Where do they use it?
When do they use it?
How often do they use it?

Take a pencil and write down the answers to these questions. Study your answers and you'll have the basis on which to build your advertising message.

Then your next job is to tell them "Why it is desirable" from their point of view. Remember, they are interested in their own wants and needs—not in a lot of adjectives making boastful claims. The public doesn't care how big your firm is or how old it is . . . they are interested in themselves, their health, their happiness, their family and their own beliefs.

Fix this thought in your mind: "WHY IT IS DESIRABLE FROM THEIR POINT OF VIEW" . . . and you will achieve success in your advertising.

Your local newspaper has proven that it is the most desirable medium for many sales messages—what about yours?

EPIC KIPLING STORY AT ELITE WEEK END

Very many of our readers will remember the epic of sublime heroism as depicted in Kipling's famous story of India, "Gunga Din", and the wonderful feature film under this title which will show at the local playhouse on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week should draw S.R.O. house at each showing.

The story is one dealing with the massacre of the British patrol by tribal Indian fanatics in a revival of the ancient murder religion of Thuggee. Three hardy sergeants are sent with a bare handful of native troops. After a terrific fight, they alone (with their water carrier Gunga Din) manage to escape and later the inevitable love theme enters when a young officer vies with his chums for the hand of a pretty Indian maiden.

In a treacherous ambush in a Thuggee temple, the whites are saved through the stealth of Gunga Din, and at the funeral of their faithful black servant, the famous lines of the immortal poem are read by a younger correspondent—Mr. Rudyard Kipling himself.

Don't miss this picture—it is enthralling drama.

NOTES

Our sincere thanks are this week extended for the following donations to the funds of the local branch of the Red Cross:

Taken at Mallard sale, $17.88.

Taken at Solodan sale, $13.90.

Sale of steer donated by Mr. Collenberg, Vanesti, $30.00.

Two pillows have been received from the local W.I., also.

It has been decided that a donation of $100.00 be made to the local branch of the Canadian Legion to assist them in sending Christmas boxes to the boys of this district who are serving overseas. Will everyone lend a hand in gathering names so that none of our boys are overlooked?

Have YOU handed in your recipe for the cook-book yet? Be sure to do so at once, otherwise it will be too late and you'll be disappointed.

LADIES—Let the Red Cross have your favorite recipes in any line of cooking. Be sure to be accurate and sign your name. Leave them at the Red Cross rooms on Saturday, or hand to any of the executive.
